Who can think of some ings the company is now showing some increase over those of the corresponding period last year, and with each week business is improving. In speaking of the dividend just declared he said it was earned and there was still money in the treasury to apply to another dividend. The company hopes to complete its new Lima shops this year, but there are a few minor matters to adjust before proceeding with the work. Regarding the substituting of electrical or air motor power for suburban service, this part of the work, he said, was largely in charge of D. G. Edwards, passenger traffic manager of the road. A contract has been made with the Baldwin works for one of its newly devised engines and cars, which would be delivered within the next six weeks and will be tested between Dayton and Middletown. The motor car itself furnishes room for the baggage and twenty-five passengers, and it will naul one or more electric cars, which can be transferred to any electric line where it would be of advantage to the railroad company to continue the service farther than its own tracks. Mr. Edwards is an enthusiast over the proposed methods of rapid transit on this branch and for suburban

> A Busy and Successful Official. An official of one of the Indianapolis sys-

ems a few days ago spent a half day with Dr. William Seward Webb, president of the Wagner Palace Car Company, and who is greatly interested in the Adirondack division of the New York Central, he in fact being one of the men who put money and brain work into building it and has made it so famous a resort for pleasure seekers. He has at Nehasane one of the pleasantest and most attractive homes in the country. On the estate is a deer park, a fishing pend and numerous other things which make a visit to the home a pleasure and one of instruction. Dr. Webb is much interested in the Wagner car works at Depew, where the new shops were erected after his own designing and where everything is under his eye. These shops, which give employment to over 1,000 people, are light and cheerful, as'comfortable as work shops can be made, and every department is operated under a perfect system. Dr. Webb goes through all departments frequently, and is seemingly known by the humblest as well as the most efficient employe in the plant. The doctor prides himself on the good feeling which exists and is evidenced on every hand between himself and the employes. The department in which the women work, making curtains, draperies, etc., for the cars, is as pleasant as are any parlors and are kept as tidy. Cleanliness is one of the most noticeable features of the establishment. The improvements which have been made to the Wagner palace cars of late are all of Dr. Webb's designing. He is very proud of two trains just turned out for the Grand Trunk road, the works not being limited in the cost of the trains. The exterior of the cars is mahogany and the interior of the most elaborate finish, and they are the finest trains ever built for any road. It is stated that the doctor knows how a sleeping car should be constructed in every detail and is steadily studying to make still further improvements. Just now he is expending a good deal of money in setting out shade trees, laying out flower beds and grass plats to make the outside correspond with the interior of the works. His chief aim seems to be to make the employes satisfied and feel at home in their employment in the Wagner company, and from his manner of doing business and with the strict attention he gives it he seems one of the busiest and happiest men in railroad service.

of the South have formed a new passenger traffic association known as the Southwestern Passenger Association, and elected officers. The articles of association were tentatively formed at a recent meeting in Atlanta subject to the concurrence of four absent members. These members were present at the meeting in Washington yesterday and after some minor changes in the articles they were formally adopted. The roads entering the association are the Atlanta, Knoxville & Northern, the Atlanta & West Point, the Atlantic Coast Line, the Central of Georgia, the Florida Central & Peninsula, Florida East Coast Railway, Georgia & Alabama, the Georgia Southern & Florida, the Louisville & Nashville, the Mobile & Birmingham, the Pennsylvania, the Plant system, the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, the Southern, the Tifton & Northeastern and the Western Railway of Alabama. The Seaboard Air-line system has not joined the association. The election of officers resulted in the choice of Henry Walters, president of the Atlantic Coast Line, as president, and Joseph Richardson, formerly commissioner of the Southern States Passenger Association, as chairman of the conference committee of the association. The articles adopted set forth the objects of the association in the following preamble: "For the purpose of interchanging authentic information in regard to the reasonableness of tariffs, and the publicity of the same, and to aid in fulfilling the purposes of the laws of the States and the United States affecting commerce, especially with the view of preventing illegal and unjust discriminations between persons and localities or kinds of The territory of the association is south of the Ohio and Potomac and east of the Mississippi rivers. The articles provide for a conference committee, to whom shall be submitted all changes in rates, rules or regulations affecting the traffic within the territory of the association. It is made the duty of the chairman to discourage reductions in rates by rebates, drawbacks, commissions or by any illegal device. The officers of the association state that the new agreement is designed to come fully within the requirements of the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the transmissouri case. It is said to be mainly in the nature of a club arrangement, for the exchange of information of mutual benefit, and not for a control of rates within the meaning of the recent decision.

This was Mr. Smith's first church wedding since coming to the city. The party made a pic-ture in front of the mass of palms and Easter lilies, with just a touch of color in a great cluster of daffodils, which filled the platform. As the words of the ceremony were being said the organist played Traumerei" very softly. The gowns of the bridal party were handsome. The bride wore white duchess satin, en train, combined with embroidered chiffon and French lace, the latter in scroll design, with seed pearls. The bodice was covered with the lace and pearls. The neck was in diamond shape and the sleeves of elbow length. Her veil was held with sprays of lilies of the valley, and the same flowers ornamented the bodice. She carried a dainty point lace handkerchief, the gift of the Sketching ub, of which she is a prominent member. Miss Stebbings's gown was of white organdie over white silk and trimmed with Valenciennes lace. The sleeves were capped with full triple ruffles of organdle and lace Her bouquet was of maidenhair fern and white lilacs. The bridesmaids' gowns were alike and were of white organdie over light green silk, and they carried arm bouquets of daffodils. The little flower maid. the young sister of the groom, was dainty in white organdie, and she carried the bride's bouquet of lilies of the valley. As winter, has gone to her home in Columthe party left the church the "Marche bus, O. Triumphale," of Guilmont's, was played. After the impressive service at the church a reception and supper was given at the management feeling that the Western confamily residence, on North Delaware street. only the relatives and most intimate friends nection is not turning over the business to being present. The wedding colors of green. white and gold were carried out in the decorations at the house. The archways were entwined with smilax and there were portieres of asparagus vine studded with daffodils. The mantels were hidden with delicate vines and lilies of the valley, the bride's flower. The bridal party, with Mr. and Mrs. McGilliard and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Christian, the groom's parents, received. The bridal party, with Miss Martha Wood, of Piqua; Miss Mary Stubbins, of Chicago; Miss Julia Fish and Miss Mabel Folsom. were seated at a long table in the second parier and the other guests at small round tables. The former was lighted with green candles in crystal candelabra, and at either end were clusters of daffodils and lilles of the valley, and from the chandelier hung a hugh ball of yellow and white flowers. This last was over the bride's cake, and there was much interest shown when the bride cut the cake, for hidden within were various small articles significant of fate. The small tables were adorned with satin moire boxes filled with wedding cake, tied with green ribbons, and thrust through the bow was a daffodil. The whole arrangement for the wedding was artistic and effective.

An additional charge may be placed against the men in Police Court. When they reached the police station Butler's hand were smeared with black paint and the officers explain that he had a pail of paint and was using it to disfigure posters on bill boards. Van Sickle is a bill poster and it is charged that bills posted by competitors were destroyed. When arrested Butler made a good deal of fuss and tried to provoke the policemen to strike him. He called them vile names and declared that he was the *best --- that ever came off the Bowery." He gave his adevening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M.

THE ENCAMPMENT FUNDS

CITY'S SUIT AGAINST MESSRS. LILLY AND FORTUNE ARGUED.

Mr. Winter States the Facts as to the Payment-Pretty Widow Sued for Winning an Old Man.

The oral argument of the case of Indianapolis against Eli Lilly and William Fortune was heard by the Supreme Court yesterday morning. The Commercial Club is also a defendant. The defendants appealed to the Supreme Court to reverse the decision of the lower court, by which $5,000 was awarded to the plaintiff.

The case grows out of the fact that in 1893, when the G. A. R. encampment was held in this city, the Commercial Club raised $50,000 to entertain the visitors to the city. This sum was not sufficient, and the city appropriated $75,000 to assist the club. William Fortune was made director of the encampment and Eli Lilly was the chairman. After all bills had been paid the books was solemnized the marriage of Dr. William | showed that only $32,000 of the city's ap-V. The lower court gave age; Mrs. Rich and Miss Anna Goddard, of a judgment for the city of $5,000 against Messrs. Fortune and Lilly, but held that the city was not entitled to the $12,000, or any part of it, that the club had retained. The Commercial Club was taken in on the appeal because it contended that if the $5,000 did not belong to Mr. Fortune it belonged to the club, and not to the city. Ferdinand Winter spoke for Messts Lilly and Fortune. His argument was based on the fact that Mr. Fortune had had a promise to pay from Eli Lilly, or he would not have undertaken the work. He cited the fact that managers of the world's fair against a local taxing district which just had been paid for their work. He said that embraces a township for the construction from the club or Lilly and Fortune, as township within the meaning of Article 13 their money had been expended by their of the Constitution. 5. Appellee cannot inown committee in conformity with the or-

> Mr. Winter said that the services of Mr. Fortune were rendered under a promise that he should receive reasonable compensation. His management of the encampment had resulted in a total saving of about $60,000 of the funds raised for expenses, and only $32,000 of the $75,000 appropriated by the city had been spent, while a balance of over $12,000 was saved from the funds of the club. The total saving was over one-half what the encampment had cost the year before. There had never been any contention that the payment to Fortune was not reasonable compensation for the services he rendered, occupying nearly a year of time, and in order to do this work he had relinquished other lucrative employment. The payment was not from the appropriation of the city, but from the funds of the Commercial Club. The payment, however, as a matter of fact, had been audited by a majority of the committee in charge of the city appropriation, who were old members of the general auditing committee. It was well understood before the payment was made. There was never any question raised about it by the men who had charge of the funds. It is the law that men who render valuable services shall be paid for them. In this instance there was a contract, both implied and expressed. Mr. Winter was followed by City Attorney

James B. Curtis, who spoke at some length He started out by saying that he would stand second to none in praising the work done in handling the encampment, Mr. Fortune's direction of it had been intelligent and economical, but the question was whether the city would pay for this work. He said that the fact that managers in other public works were paid for their trouble was not applicable in this case. He said that Fortune acted as an officer of a public organization, and that the services which he performed on behalf of the organization were done as an officer of the club, and not as an employe of the city. Mr. Curtis contended that the promise o payment was a personal one made by Col. Lilly before he became chairman of the executive board, not after his election as was a personal obligation, but after arguing this point it was shown by reference to the record in the case that he was mistaken, as the record showed that the promise was made after his election as Charles W. Smith spoke for the Commercial. Club. He argued that the $5,000 paid the expenses of the encampment, and that it was no business of the city as to what as done with the club's mon-Edward W. Daniels followed Mr. Smith in an argument for Mr. Fortune. He contended that the city had no right to pry into the affairs of the Commercial Club and that the sum paid to Mr. Fortune was in compliance with an agreement between Eli Lilly and Mr. Fortune. The case is before the Supreme Court for final action, and a decision will be handed down in a short time. PRETTY WIDOW ROY SUED. Wife of an Aged Farm Hand Asks for Damages. In Room 3, Superior Court, yesterday evening a jury was impaneled to try the case of Sarah Shackelford against Marof her husband's affections. The case was tried in the Superior Court last January, but the jury failed to agree. Mrs. Shackelford, the plaintiff, is nearly sixty years old, and her husband, Richard Shackelford, is about the same age. The Shackelfords live at Millersville. They have a family of eight children. Mrs. Roy resides on ridian street, just north of the township line. She runs a dairy farm, and in April, 1896, employed Richard Shackelford to come and work for her. It appears that here is where the domestic troubles of the Shackelfords commenced. The plaintiff avers that her husband was not proof against the allurements of the fascinating widow, who so successfully practiced her arts and enticements that plaintiff's husband soon lost his affection for wife and family. It is charged that the defendant was seen hugging and kissing the plaintiff's husband, and that she declared "she would have him." Shackel-Roy also denies the allegations of the complaint. She says Shackelford was an excellent hand on the farm and she kept him there on that account. The plaintiff demands $10,000 damages. VARIOUS DIVORCE SUITS. His Pauline Called Him Bad Names -Other Troubles.

William Boethelt, in a suit for divorce brought yesterday against Pauline Boethelt, makes some rather singular allegations. He was married to the defendant in 1881 and lived with her until a few days ago. He says she possessed an ungovernable temper and was in the habit of referring to him as a "devil" and a "crank." He says that two months ago she left home in a mysterious manner and was absent for three days, returning without giving a reason for her singular conduct. She also threatened to kill him, he says, and would have put the threat into execution a few weeks ago had not the revolver been taken from her. A week later she deserted the plaintiff and went to Cincinnati, refusing to return to him. The plaintiff further avers that his wife on one occasion took a dose of poison in his presence, causing him great alarm. The plaintiff is employed in Herman's picture store. Hyman Miller wants a divorce from Bessie Lavigne Miller, who is now sojourning in New Castle, Pa. The plaintiff and de-
